IIO Investigation: 2022-344

On July 22, 2025, Chief Civilian Director Jessica Berglund determined that reasonable grounds existed to believe that an off-duty RCMP officer may have committed an offence, and the IIO referred the matter to the BC Prosecution Service for consideration of charges.

On September 18, 2025, the BC Prosecution Service (BCPS) determined that no charges would be approved against the officer and did not publish a media statement.

Incident Summary

On December 24, 2022, police responded to a report of a disturbance at a home in Saanich. Upon arrival, a man was found to have been seriously injured and was taken to a hospital for treatment. The officers believed that the man had been injured by an off-duty RCMP officer, and so the IIO was notified and began an investigation.
